Orlando's Orange County Convention Center is the nation's second largest with an enormous 2.1 million square feet of exhibition space all connected by an open-air bridge. Conference hotels and freestanding event facilities offer another 2.9 million square feet of meeting and exhibit space for smaller groups, and there's even more on the way.

DESTINATION DETAILS

There is no disguising the fact Orlando is a city built on theme parks – lots of them. Until 1966, there was precious little here in Central Florida, but growth has sprawled thanks to a huge influx of tourists following the arrival of Walt Disney World. Beginning with the original Magic Kingdom, which opened in 1971, Disney has added three more theme parks, two water parks and a host of associated development, including hotels, shops and golf courses to make it a true 'World' resort.

With Disney setting the example, SeaWorld and Universal have added to Orlando's reputation as the family entertainment capital of the world. Between them, they draw more than 40 million visitors every year, and that has meant a huge growth in associated hotels, restaurants and shops, plus many smaller scale attractions. There truly is something for everyone in Orlando.

World-renowned creativity, imagination and innovation truly separates Orlando from every other meetings destination. You'll get your greatest possible ROI—that's Return on Ideas—from the one place you can count on every hotel, attraction, recreational facility and meetings-related business to help spur your out-of-the-box thinking!
